

LEE ENTERPRISES, INCORPORATED
CODE OF BUSINESS CONDUCT AND ETHICS

Introduction

This Code of Business Conduct and Ethics covers a wide range of business practices and procedures. It sets out basic principles to guide all employees of the Company. It is supplemented by our Corporate Policies, Guidelines and Procedures, which, collectively, provide a framework for prudent decision-making. All of our employees must conduct themselves in accordance with this Code and seek to avoid even the appearance of improper behavior. In this respect, Lee's tradition is that we will engage in no business or political arrangement that would be embarrassing to us if it were published on the front page of the local paper.

An Enterprise can create a more restrictive policy if the enterprise head believes such a policy would enhance the spirit and intent of this policy.

This Code also should be provided to and followed by the company's agents and representatives, including consultants.

If a law conflicts with a policy in this Code, you must comply with the law; however, if a local custom or policy conflicts with this Code, you must comply with the Code. If you have any questions about these conflicts, you should ask your supervisor how to handle the situation.

I. Compliance with Laws, Rules and Regulations

Obeying the law, both in letter and in spirit, is the foundation on which this company's ethical standards are built. All employees must respect and obey the laws of the cities, states and countries in which we operate. Although not all employees are expected to know the details of these laws, it is important to know enough to determine when to seek advice from supervisors, managers or other appropriate personnel. The company holds information and training sessions to promote compliance with laws, rules and regulations, including insider trading laws.

2. Conflicts of Interest

A "conflict of interest" exists when a person's private interest interferes in any way with the interests of the company. A conflict situation can arise when an employee, officer or director takes actions or has interests that may make it difficult to perform company work objectively and effectively. Conflicts of interest also may arise when an employee, officer or director, or family member, receives personal benefits from third parties as a result of his or her position in the company. For example, loans or guarantees of obligations of loans to employees and their family members may create conflicts of interest.

It is almost always a conflict of interest for a company employee to work simultaneously for a competitor, customer or supplier. You are not allowed to work for a competitor as a consultant or board member. Any employee who wishes to perform consulting services of any kind must inform and obtain prior approval from his or her publisher and respective operating vice president. In no event may an employee perform consulting services for a competitor. Additionally, outside consulting is viewed as a conflict of interest for salaried employees who are expected to devote their professional efforts solely to the company.

The best policy is to avoid any direct or indirect business connection with our customers, suppliers or competitors, except on our behalf.

Acceptance of gifts in a business relationship can also result in a conflict of interest. No gift or entertainment should ever be accepted by any company employee, directly or indirectly through a family member or agent unless it: (1) is not a cash gift, (2) is consistent with customary business practices, (3) is not excessive in value, (4) cannot be construed as a bribe or payoff and (5) does not violate any laws or regulations. Please discuss with your supervisor any gifts or proposed gifts that you are not certain are appropriate. Any gift given or received that is valued in excess of $100 must be reported to the Vice President of Human Resources and Legal.

Conflicts of interest are prohibited as a matter of company policy, except under guidelines approved by the Board of Directors. Conflicts of interest may not always be clear-cut, so if you have a question, you should consult with higher levels of management or the company's corporate attorneys. Any employee, officer or director who becomes aware of a conflict or potential conflict should bring it to the attention of a supervisor, manager or other appropriate personnel or consult the procedures described in Section 12 of this Code.

3. Insider Trading

Employees who have access to confidential information are not permitted to use or share that information for stock trading purposes or for any other purpose except the conduct of our business. All non-public information about the company should be considered confidential information. To use nonpublic information for personal financial benefit or to "tip" others who might make an investment decision on the basis of this information is not only unethical but also illegal. If you have any questions, please consult the company's General Counsel.

4. Corporate Opportunities

Employees, officers and directors are prohibited from taking personal gain through the use of corporate property, information or position without the consent of the Board of Directors. No employee may use corporate property, information or position for improper personal gain, and no employee may compete with the company, directly or indirectly. Employees, officers and directors owe a duty to the company to advance its legitimate interests when the opportunity to do so arises.

5. Competition and Fair Dealing

We seek to outperform our competition fairly and honestly. We seek competitive advantages through superior performance, never through unethical or illegal business practices. Stealing proprietary information, possessing trade secret information that was obtained without the owner's consent, or inducing such disclosures by past or present employees of other companies is prohibited. Each employee should endeavor to respect the rights of and deal fairly with the company's customers, suppliers, competitors and employees. No employee should take unfair advantage of anyone through manipulation, concealment, abuse of privileged information, misrepresentation of material facts, or any other intentional unfair-dealing practice.

To maintain the company's valuable reputation, compliance with our quality processes and safety requirements is essential. In the context of ethics, quality requires that our products and services be designed and produced to meet our obligations to customers. All inspection and testing documents must be handled in accordance with all applicable regulations.

The purpose of business entertainment and gifts in a commercial setting is to create good will and sound working relationships. No gift or entertainment should ever be offered, given, or provided by any company employee, directly or indirectly through a family member of an employee or agent unless it: (1) is not a cash gift, (2) is consistent with customary business practices, (3) is not excessive in value, (4) cannot be construed as a bribe or payoff and (5) does not violate any laws or regulations. Please discuss with your supervisor any gifts or proposed gifts that you are not certain are appropriate. Any gift given or received that is valued in excess of $100 must be reported to the Vice President of Human Resources and Legal.

6. Payments to Government Personnel

The U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act prohibits giving anything of value, directly or indirectly, to officials of foreign governments or foreign political candidates in order to obtain or retain business. It is strictly prohibited to make illegal payments to government officials of any country.

In addition, the U.S. government has a number of laws and regulations regarding business gratuities that may be accepted by U.S. government personnel. The promise, offer or delivery to an official or employee of the U.S. government of a gift, favor or other gratuity in violation of these rules would not only violate company policy but could also be a criminal offense. State and local governments, as well as foreign governments, may have similar rules. The company's General Counsel can provide guidance to you in this area.

7. Record-Keeping

Honest and accurate recording and reporting of information is required of all employees. Records should always be retained or destroyed according to the company's record retention policies. In accordance with those policies, in the event of litigation or governmental investigation please immediately consult the company's Vice President — Human Resources and Legal, as set forth in the company's legal policy. Maintain all records related to the matter until after consultation with corporate legal counsel and your operating vice president.

All of the company's books, records, accounts and financial statements must be maintained in reasonable detail, must appropriately reflect the company's transactions and must conform both to applicable legal requirements and to the company's system of internal controls. Unrecorded or "off the books" funds or assets should not be maintained unless permitted by applicable law or regulation and approved by the company's CFO and Audit Committee.

Business records and communications often become public, and we should avoid exaggeration, derogatory remarks, guesswork, or inappropriate characterizations of people and companies that can be misunderstood. This applies equally to e-mail, internal memos and formal reports.

8. Confidentiality

Employees must maintain the confidentiality of confidential information entrusted to them by the company or its customers, except when disclosure is authorized by the company's General or Corporate Counsel or required by laws or regulations. Confidential information includes all non-public information that might be of use to competitors, or harmful to the company or its customers, if disclosed. It also includes information that suppliers and customers have entrusted to us. The obligation to preserve confidential information continues even after employment ends.

9. Protection and Proper Use of Company Assets

All employees should protect the company's assets and ensure their efficient use. Theft, carelessness and waste have a direct impact on the company's profitability. Any suspected incident of fraud or theft should be immediately reported for investigation. Company equipment should not be used for non-company business, though incidental personal use is permitted.

The obligation of employees to protect the company's assets includes its proprietary information. Proprietary information includes intellectual property such as trade secrets, patents, trademarks and copyrights, as well as business, marketing and distribution plans, engineering ideas, designs, databases, records, salary information and any unpublished financial data and reports. Unauthorized use or distribution of this information would violate company policy. It also could be illegal and result in civil or even criminal penalties.

10. Statements to the Public

No public statements may be made as a representative of the company without prior authorization from the Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, Vice President, Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer, or Director of Communications.

Any employee who wishes to speak at a public event or submit an article for a publication in a trade magazine or other publication must obtain prior approval from his or her publisher and respective operating vice-president. While we recognize and support your right to engage in legal activities while you are not working, we also must be careful to (1) avoid the employee's position being mistaken for the position of the company, (2) avoid an interpretation that the company in any way endorses the employee's position, and (3) avoid a violation of any other policies of the company, including those related to conflict of interest and confidentiality of company property and information.

11. Waivers of the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics

Any waiver of this Code for executive officers or directors may be made only by the Board or a Board committee and will be promptly disclosed as required by law and applicable rules of The Nasdaq Stock Market, LLC ("NASDAQ").

12. Reporting any Illegal or Unethical Behavior

We all must work to ensure prompt and consistent action against violations of this Code. In some situations, however, it is difficult to know right from wrong. Since we cannot anticipate every situation that will arise, it is important that we have a way to approach a new question or problem. These are the steps to keep in mind:

- Make sure you have all the facts. In order to reach the right solutions, we must be as fully informed as possible.
- Ask yourself: What specifically am I being asked to do? Does it seem unethical or improper? This will enable you to focus on the specific question you are faced with, and the alternatives you have. Use your judgment and common sense; if something seems unethical or improper, it probably is.
- Discuss the problem with your supervisor. This is the basic guidance for all situations. In many cases, your supervisor will be more knowledgeable about the issue and will appreciate being brought into the decision-making process. Remember that it is your supervisor's responsibility to help solve problems.
- Seek help from Company resources. In the rare case where it may not be appropriate to discuss an issue with your supervisor, or where you do not feel comfortable approaching your supervisor with your question, discuss it with your General Manager or Human Resources manager. If that alternative also is not appropriate, call 1-877-LEE-4YOU, the company's Open Door Line. If you prefer to write or call directly, you may address your concerns to our VP of Human Resources or our independent General Counsel's office listed below or to any other officer of the company listed in the Lee Corporate Directory:

You may report ethical violations in confidence and without fear of retaliation. The company does not permit retaliation of any kind against employees for good faith reports of ethical violations.

13. Enforcement

Violation of the standards of this Code will be subject to disciplinary action. Disciplinary action may vary according to circumstances, but may include suspension or termination of employment.

14. Interpretation

This Code shall be interpreted in such a manner as to satisfy the requirements of NASDAQ Rule 5610 and applicable SEC regulations.

Approved by the Lee Enterprises, Incorporated Board of Directors effective March 7, 2024.
