NEWS RELEASE

Two senior Lee Enterprises publishers change locations

DAVENPORT, Iowa (Nov. 27, 2007) — Two senior publishers are relocating within Lee Enterprises, Incorporated (NYSE: LEE).

- Linda Lindus will become publisher of The Daily News in Longview, Wash. She is currently publisher of The Pantagraph in Bloomington, Ill.
- Richard Johnston, currently publisher of The Journal Times in Racine, Wis., will become publisher in Bloomington.

In transferring to Longview, Lindus is stepping down from her additional role as a vice president for publishing.

“While I’ll certainly miss working with colleagues in Bloomington and elsewhere in Lee, this move gives me a welcome opportunity to rejoin family in my home state,” she said. “It also allows me to work with another outstanding staff in one of the most respected operations in our company.” The Daily News was a finalist for 2006 Lee Enterprise of the Year. She will succeed Peter York, who has become publisher of the North County Times in Oceanside/Escondido, Calif.

In addition to Bloomington, she has had responsibility for daily newspapers in Decatur, DeKalb, Mattoon, Charleston and Carbondale, Ill.; Park Hills, Mo.; Maysville, Ky.; Carlisle, Pa.; Auburn and Glens Falls, NY; and Orangeburg, S.C.

Lindus joined Lee in 2000 as publisher of The Southern Illinoisan in Carbondale, Ill., and moved to the Herald & Review in Decatur as publisher and group leader in 2002. The Southern Illinoisan received Lee’s highest honor, Enterprise of the Year, in 2003, and the Herald & Review received the honor in 2004. She became publisher in Bloomington and vice president for publishing in 2005.

Linda Lindus

Richard Johnston

Before joining Lee, she was an award-winning publisher in Utah and Arizona. In 1992, she became the first woman to serve as president of the Arizona Newspapers Association, and in 1995 she received its Presidential Award as a master editor and publisher. Under her leadership, The Southern Illinoisan received the Illinois Press Association's award for general excellence, the state's top award, and the Herald & Review received it three times. Among industry activities, she is president of the Illinois Press Association board of directors and Government Affairs Committee.

Johnston is Lee's longest-serving publisher, having led four newspapers over 22 years. He joined Lee in 1975 as an advertising sales representative in Racine, advancing to advertising director in 1980. In 1985 he was appointed publisher at the Kewanee Star Courier in Illinois, a former Lee newspaper. In 1987 he became publisher of The Ottumwa Courier in Iowa, another former Lee newspaper, and in 1992 he became publisher of The Southern Illinoisan. He returned to Racine as publisher in 1998.

"Racine has been such a large part of my life that I'll find it very hard to say goodbye," Johnston said, "but at the same time I'm tremendously excited about the opportunity to move to Bloomington and join the staff at The Pantagraph."

He is a journalism graduate of the University of Wisconsin in Madison. He has served on many civic and professional boards during his 32 years with Lee. He and his wife, Karen, have three grown children.

Rick Parrish, advertising director at The Journal Times, will serve as interim publisher until a successor is appointed.

Lee Enterprises is a premier publisher of local news, information and advertising in primarily midsize markets, with 51 daily newspapers and a joint interest in five others, rapidly growing online sites and more than 300 weekly newspapers and specialty publications in 23 states.
